

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. ARGUMENT.

PIETRO, the Prince of Palermo, goes to Florence, in accordance with the wishes of his father, to marry FIAMETTA, the daughter of the DUKE OF TUSCANY. FIAMETTA, when a child, had been adopted by LAMBERTUCCIO, a Grocer, who was not aware of her noble birth. The DUKE had caused her to be reared in this humble manner, for reasons of his own, intending to wed her to PIETRO, to whom she had been in infancy betrothed. Upon PIETRO's arrival in Florence, before presenting himself to the DUKE and FIAMETTA, he joins in several adventures with the Students. BOCCACCIO, the novelist and poet, who is hated by the men of Florence for having ridiculed them in his novels, is deeply in love with FIAMETTA. PIETRO is mistaken for BOCCACCIO, and is severely beaten by the indignant Florentines. As PIETRO is about to be solemnly betrothed to FIAMETTA, for considerations of state (although he does not love her, and she dislikes him), BOCCACCIO, knowing that his affection for her is reciprocated, arranges a play which illustrates the follies of PIETRO so strongly, that the latter surrenders the hand of FIAMETTA to BOCCACCIO.

BOCCACCIO.

English Libretto by DEXTER SMITH.

Music by FRANZ von SUPPE.

Allegro Moderato. M.M. ♩ = 116.

PRELUDIO.

The musical score is written for piano in G major (one sharp) and common time. It consists of five systems of music, each with a grand staff (treble and bass clef). The first system is marked with a forte 'f' dynamic and includes a 'cres.' (crescendo) marking. The second system begins with a piano 'p' dynamic. The third and fourth systems continue the melodic and harmonic development. The fifth system features a series of dynamic markings: 'sfz' (sforzando), 'cres.' (crescendo), 'sfz', 'cres. assai.' (crescendo molto), and 'fff' (fortissimo). The score is characterized by its rhythmic patterns and the use of chords and arpeggios.

Moderato. M.M. = 80.

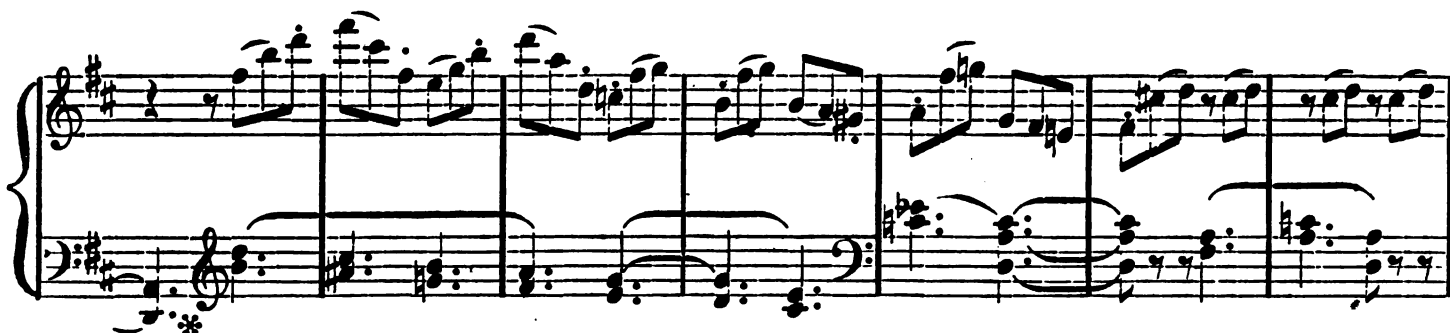

First system of musical notation. The key signature is one flat (B-flat). The time signature is 5/4. The music is written for piano. The first measure is marked dim. p. The second measure is marked pp. The system ends with a double bar line.

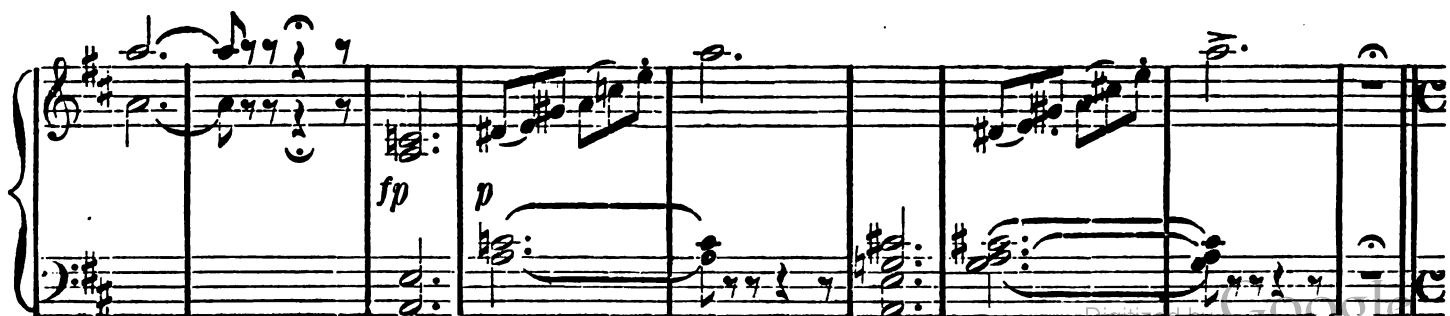

Second system of musical notation. The key signature is one flat (B-flat). The time signature is 6/8. The music is written for piano. The first measure is marked Moderato. M.M. = 72. The second measure is marked Ped.. The system ends with a double bar line.

Third system of musical notation. The key signature is one flat (B-flat). The time signature is 6/8. The music is written for piano. The first measure is marked pp. The second measure is marked p Ped.. The system ends with a double bar line.

Fourth system of musical notation. The key signature is one flat (B-flat). The time signature is 6/8. The music is written for piano. The first measure is marked pp. The second measure is marked p. The system ends with a double bar line.

Fifth system of musical notation. The key signature is one flat (B-flat). The time signature is 6/8. The music is written for piano. The first measure is marked fp. The second measure is marked p. The system ends with a double bar line.

ACT I.

SCENE I. Public Square in Florence. On the right, the church of Santa Maria Novella; on the left, house and shop of Scalsa, a barber. At the back, in the center, a fountain. It is the 24th of June, St. John's Day; the houses are gaily decorated in honor of the patron Saint of the city. At the rise of the curtain, the scene is clear, with the exception of CHECCO, ANSELMO, GIACOMETTO, TITO and a few other beggars.

(Enter LOTTER. and LAMB. carrying umbrellas.)

LOTTER. (Angrily.) To the gallows with Boccaccio! With his scandalous novels he will soon make our heretofore quiet Florence (sneezes) anything but pleasant for us!

LAMB. Too true! Your sneezing confirms it!

(Enter CHECCO, leading a dog, around the neck of which is a placard on which is printed, conspicuously, the words: "I am blind!")

CHECCO. A poor blind man!

LAMB. (Frightened.) Oh, what shall I do?

LOTTER. What's the matter?

LAMB. Matter enough! Whenever you meet a blind man before mass, it is a sign of bad luck!

LOTTER. Rubbish!

LAMB. What's that you say? Rubbish? I tell you it is no nonsense! I have tested it. I would rather have given considerable money than to have had it happen to me. I'll bet my lottery ticket doesn't draw a prize now! I know the bugs will eat up all of my olives!

LOTTER. I can change your luck.

LAMB. You can? How?

LOTTER. Give this poor blind man some money. Be liberal!

LAMB. (Dropping coin.) Well?

(CHECCO eagerly picks up money.)

LAMB. How's this?

CHECCO. Signor, I am not blind! I can see as well as you can!

LOTTER. Oh!

LAMB. You vagabond! Why do you put that placard on your dog?

CHECCO. Because the poor dog is blind! Thank heaven, I'm not! Besides, they put the wrong tag on me. I'm deaf and dumb!

(Exit CHECCO. As he runs off, LOTTER and LAMB. beat him with their umbrellas.)

LAMB. You cheat! Still, I am glad he is not blind!

LOTTER. You are like an old woman! Stop drinking strong tea and confine yourself to lemonade. You see too many ghosts now!

LAMB. You are an unbeliever! I'll prove to you at twelve o'clock to-night that ghosts—

LOTTER. Oh, yes, you want darkness and mystery. You can't prove your stuff in bright daylight.

POPULACE. (Outside.) Down with Boccaccio!

LAMB. A few nights ago, I dreamed that a big black bull came after me. The next day a real bull ran after me, and his big horns—

(At this moment enter SCALZA carrying umbrella, who, not seeing LOTTER. and LAMB. runs against LAMB., who, in his fright, knocks SCALZA down, and then assists him to rise.)

LOTTER. Down with Boccaccio!

SCALZA. Boccaccio, indeed! Yes! down with Boccaccio!

LOTTER. and LAMB. Oho!

SCALZA. Well, why do you knock me down when I am up and help me up when I am down? Does it amuse you? What? (He recognises them.) Why, friends Lotteringhi and Lambertuccio, have you lost your wits? Good morning! (They shake hands.)

LOTTER. You have just returned from a journey, Signor Scalza?

SCALZA. Yes, I have been to Pisa, to bleed the mayor of that city. Beatrice, my daughter, does not expect me home until to-morrow (points toward his house) but when I was about to leave Pisa, I was permitted to join the suite of the Prince of Palermo, Prince Pietro, who was coming to Florence. So I gained a day!

LAMB. The suite of a Prince?

SCALZA. Yes, the Prince is here to visit the court of the Duke of Tuscany, in order to meet his affianced. (Is about to enter his house.)

LAMB. What is that? His affianced? Our Duke has no daughter. He has three children, but they are sons.

SCALZA. Ah! But it is a great secret!

LAMB. and LOTTER. A secret? Well?

SCALZA. (Confidentially.) The youngest child of the Duke is a daughter, but she has not lived at the palace for some years. It was given out at the time of the birth of the princess, that the babe was a boy.

LOTTER. This is great news indeed!

LAMB. But is it true?

SCALZA. I had it from one of the Prince's suite.

LAMB. I wonder whom she can be?

LOTTER. This almost makes us forget that scoundrel, Boccaccio! You will join us, Signor Scalza?

SCALZA. Join who? What for?

LOTTER. We are going to revenge the insults Boccaccio has heaped upon us! We are going to kill him!

LAMB. You'd better wait till you have caught him!

SCALZA. Hear me! Don't be so boisterous! Don't shed any blood! Banish him! Let's go at once to the mayor and demand Boccaccio's banishment.

LAMB. I agree to that!

LOTTER. Then you will go without me. I do not believe in any such childish punishment. I want him killed right here, and now! I'll kill him myself—

SCALZA. My friend! Remember your dignity, your position. You are a merchant cooper; I am at the head of a tonsorial palace. We must join in brutal street rows!

LAMB. Peace, my friends! Lotteringhi, you had better accept the banishment.

SCALZA. That will suit us all, I think. For my part, I know that my daughter Beatrice never flirts with students, so Boccaccio cannot write about her in his novels. She is very circumspect.

LAMB. And my sister, Peronella, is a model of propriety. She is no subject for Boccaccio's pen.

LOTTER. And as for my wife, Isabella, the whole city knows that she never even looks at any gentleman but myself.

SCALZA. That is true! (Calls to his daughter.) Beatrice!

LEONETTO. (From SCALZA's house.) Good heavens! Her father!

LAMB. We won't mind what Boccaccio writes!

SCALZA. Good by, friends! (Calls.) Beatrice?

BEATRICE. (Aside.) Is it possible? 'Tis my father.

BOCC. Your father? What is to be done?

BEATRICE. I will tell you what to do.

LOTTER. I believe Boccaccio should be whipped in the public square before he is banished!

LAMB. (To LOTTER.) Don't say a word to Scalza. I believe in that. Boccaccio ought to receive some lashes. (LAMB. and LOTTER. start to go.)

SCALZA. (Tries door of his house.) The door is locked. My daughter is asleep! I will awake her by singing a song. (Calls after LAMB. and LOTTER.) Will you join me?

LOTTER. and LAMB. (Coming back.) With pleasure!

(SCALZA, LOTTER. and LAMB. while singing, hold their umbrellas as if they were guitars, and pretend to play upon them.)

STUDENTS. Boccaccio? Leonetto?

BOCC. Two friends, after all!

CHICHIBIO. Two rivals!

BOCC. Yes, gentlemen; Boccaccio's rival is your friend and my friend—our friend, Leonetto. I was first on the spot.

LEON. I have adored Beatrice for six weeks.

BOCC. And I have known her just thirty minutes!

TOFANO. And what is the moral of this adventure?

BOCC. It is that a new love is the old one of another lover!

ALL. He is quite right.

LEON. Tell me how you came to know Signorina Beatrice.

ALL. Yes, tell us!

BOCC. I will. I must tell you that I love—

LEON. Beatrice?

BOCC. No! I love an unknown maiden. Since I first met her, I see her everywhere. Such is the force of a poet's imagination! In that church I sought her this morning. Not finding her, I gave my arm to another, and thus escorting her home from church—

TOFANO. You became acquainted with Beatrice Scalza.

BOCC. Yes. Though she cannot bear comparison with my unknown angel; she, nevertheless, somewhat resembles her!

LEON. Why? What resemblance?

BOCC. In that they are both strangers to me!

CHICH. A great reason, truly! How absurd! Listen!

BOCC. As we wended our way from church, Beatrice suddenly walked into Scalza's barber shop. Thus, Leonetto and I became rivals! While I was chatting pleasantly with my new acquaintance, Leonetto entered, calling for Scalza. Beatrice, hearing him, told me that her grandfather was coming, as she knew his voice. [To LEONETTO.] You are her grandfather! Beatrice called down stairs for you to wait. She shouted, "Wait a moment, please. My sister is making a call upon me!"

LEON. You are her sister. What a joke!

BOCC. Yes! Well, we were talking of student life, when, suddenly, her father unexpectedly arrived from Pisa, one day earlier than she had expected him!

TOFANO. Is it possible?

BOCC. Not wishing her father to know that she ever received calls from students, or even engaged in conversation with them, she resolved upon a harmless little ruse, which was to make her father believe that two strangers had entered the house, and that one had attacked the other, as if to kill him. She gave me a mask; told me to draw my sword. She told me to make a mock fight. You know the rest. Is Leonetto satisfied?

LEON. Quite!

TOFANO. All of which shows us how you obtain materials for your sensational novels! You are so fascinating!

BOCC. True! I cannot help it if all the ladies adore me!

No. 4. SONG OF BOCCACCIO.

Moderato assai, quasi Andante. M.M. ♩ = 76.

The piano introduction is in G major, 4/4 time. It consists of five measures. The right hand features a series of ascending eighth-note chords, while the left hand provides a simple harmonic accompaniment. The piece begins with a piano (p) dynamic.

BOCCACCIO.

The first line of the song is in G major, 4/4 time. The vocal melody is written in the treble clef, and the piano accompaniment is in the bass clef. The lyrics are: "There is a jol - ly stu - dent standing there, He sees a gen - tle maid - en young and fair; She's walking with her". The piano part features a simple harmonic accompaniment with a piano (p) dynamic.

The second line of the song continues in G major, 4/4 time. The vocal melody and piano accompaniment continue. The lyrics are: "fa - ther down the street, With smiles they greet; She is a blue-eyed girl, with flax - en". The piano part features a simple harmonic accompaniment with a forte piano (fp) dynamic.

PIETRO.—Well, this is indeed a change for me! I am the first prince at Palermo, and the last student in Florence. And I come as a lover, too! I am sure that I shall not be recognized. The duke, my father, said to me the other day: "Pietro, you are no longer a boy. It is time you took a wife. Set out at once for Florence. The duke of that city has a lovely young daughter. Marry her. By this act we shall strengthen our alliance with Florence." The daughter may be a Hebe and the duke an Adonis. I do not care to become acquainted with either of them. I like the society of the young ladies, but I do not propose to marry just yet. I am too fond of wine and flirtation:

The first system of the musical score consists of a vocal line on a single staff and a piano accompaniment on two staves. The key signature is one sharp (F#), indicating G major. The vocal line begins with a half note G4, followed by a quarter rest, then a quarter note A4, and continues with a melody. The piano accompaniment features a steady eighth-note pattern in the right hand and block chords in the left hand.

These are temp - ta - - tions, Mak - ing his heart re - joice; Wine and flir - ta - - tion,

The second system continues the musical piece. The vocal line has a melodic phrase that ends with a half note G4. The piano accompaniment includes some arpeggiated chords in the right hand. The lyrics are split across the vocal line and the piano accompaniment.

These are his studies choice, These are the temp - ta - tions that his heart re - joice.

The third system of the score includes dynamic markings. The piano accompaniment features a crescendo ('cres.') leading to a fortissimo ('f') section, followed by a piano ('p') section. The vocal line continues with a melodic phrase that ends with a half note G4.

The fourth system of the score features a more complex piano accompaniment. The right hand has many beamed sixteenth notes, creating a rapid, flowing texture. The left hand continues with block chords. The system concludes with a final chord in the piano part.

PIETRO. If I were not Prince of Palermo, I would like to be Boccaccio. [Takes book from pocket.] Here is his latest novel! It is jolly! How he abuses the poor, miserable, lazy, tippling husbands, to be sure! Ha! Ha! Ha!

[Enter LEONETTO.]

LEON. [Entering, sees PIETRO, from behind, and mistakes him for BOCC.] [Aside.] I do not think Boccaccio knows that his angel is in the church! [To PIETRO.] Ah, Boccaccio! You are here?

PIETRO. [Surprised and turns toward LEON.] Signor?

LEON. I beg your pardon! A mistake!

PIETRO. You honor me!

LEON. You resemble Boccaccio, at all events!

PIETRO. In the back of my head!

[Enter BOCC.]

LEON. The front of his head looks like that! [Points to BOCC.]

PIETRO. What? Is it possible? Ah!

BOCC. Your servant, cavalier!

PIETRO. [To LEONETTO.] How fortunate! [To BOCC.] Have I the honor of addressing the nation's greatest poet? The pride of Italy?

BOCC. I am not Petrarch.

PIETRO. No; Giovanni Boccaccio!

BOCC. Too much honor! And you are—?

PIETRO. My name? [Aside.] I must preserve my incognito. I never thought of a name. [To BOCC.] My name is Alessandro Chiar-montese. I am a Sicilian; a student.

BOCC. What did you study at Palermo?

PIETRO. Nothing. Ah, yes, yes—two branches. Wine and Flirtation!

BOCC. Pleasant studies, truly!

PIETRO. At Florence I shall study human nature.

BOCC. Then you can continue your studies in beverages. All the men of Florence are tipplers.

PIETRO. I want to be a novelist too.

LEON. Ah, indeed.

PIETRO. I am young and not without spirit and ambition; and I also have some money.

LEON. Give me more spirit and less money.

PIETRO. [Laughs—to LEON.] Not bad! [To BOCC.] Pray, sublime poet and novelist, will you accept a pupil?

BOCC. You've a wrong idea, Alessandro! My novels are not invented. They are a reflection from life. I live all my romances before writing them.

PIETRO. Just my idea! I want to live some of them too.

LEON. Then, welcome to Florence.

PIETRO. Will you give me an introduction to the good people of Florence? [To LEON.] Will you too?

LEON. Gladly.

BOCC. Come, prepare!

[Enter people from church, passing across the stage, and exit.]

LEON. [To BOCC., as some old ladies enter.] Come, Alessandro, let me introduce you those ladies.

PIETRO. No, Leonetto. I will not deprive you of their society for the world!

BOCC. [Aside.] The services are over; my fair one will soon appear!

[Enter all who have been in the church, slowly, as ISABELLA, BEATRICE, and PERONELLA enter.]

PIETRO. [To LEON.] Who is that lady?

LEON. [Thinking he means BEATRICE.] Those fair blue eyes?

PIETRO. No, no! The other.

LEON. That is Isabella, the cooper's niece.

BEA. [To PERON.] Where did you leave Fiametta?

PERON. In the church, praying to be relieved from the evil which threatens her. Her father wants to marry her, against her will. Heaven help her!

BEA. Amen.

PERON. Still, the intended husband is rich. I would marry him.

ISAB. My husband is a drunkard. Were I not married, I would not be. Marriage is slavery!

PIETRO. [To LEON.] What a pretty girl the cooper's niece is! Will you introduce me?

ISAB. [To PERON.] What a fine cavalier!

[LEONETTO presents PIETRO to ISABELLA.]

ISAB. [To PIETRO.] You come from Sicily. Our sun is not as bright as yours.

PIETRO. Then I will look into your eyes! [To LEON.] I am writing the preface.

ISAB. Besides, our climate is cold.

PIETRO. I have brought eternal fire from Ætna within my heart.

ISAB. You are a poet.

CHECCO. [To PIETRO.] A poor, blind man.

PIETRO. [To CHECCO.] Away with you!

CHECCO. [Aside.] Miser! [To BOCC.] A poor cripple!

BOCC. [Puts money in CHECCO's hat.] There.

CHECCO. Thanks signor!

[Exit all but BOCC., LEON., PIETRO, CHECCO., ISAB., BEA., & PERON.]

BOCC. [Aside.] What shall I do? [To CHECCO.] Do you want to earn some more money, my poor fellow? [Hands another coin to CHECCO, who puts crutch over his shoulder and runs after BOCC.]

[Exit BOCC. and CHECCO.]

BEA. [To ISABELLA and PERON., walking towards SCALZA's house.] Will you take a glass of wine, ladies?

ISAB. & PERON. Thanks. With pleasure.

PIETRO & LEON. May we escort you, ladies?

BEA. Some other time, gentlemen. To-morrow. [Exit BEA., ISAB. & PERON. into SCALZA's house.]

PIETRO. Where's Boccaccio?

LEON. [Looks into church.] He cannot be far away. I am going over to the Public house. You'll find me there. [Aside.] That young man is a second Boccaccio.

[Exit LEON.]

LOTTER. [To LAMB.] It is Boccaccio.

LAMB. [To LOTTER.] Be quiet—we've got him now!

PIETRO. [Does not see them.] I cannot find him. He has gone to the public house.

LAMB. [Takes PIETRO by the shoulder.] I have business with you, sir. [Strikes him with umbrella.] Take that!

LOTTER. [Strikes PIETRO.] And that!

PIETRO. Oh!

LAMB. Take that! [Hits PIETRO again.] You miserable scribbler [Calls.] Scalza!

LOTTER. [Hits PIETRO.] Take that, you abusive coward! [Calls.] Scalza, come here!

PIETRO. [Aside.] Scribbler? What do they mean?

LAMB. [Pounds on SCALZA's door.] Scalza, come quickly! Here he is!

PIETRO. Have done, or I will cut you to pieces! [Draws sword; runs off. Exit PIETRO, LOTTER., and LAMBERTUCCIO.]

(Enter FIAMETTA from church. Enter BOCCACCIO, disguised as a beggar.)

PERON. Come, Fiametta, we must go into church. We are very late. This is a double holiday for us. It is just ten years ago to-day, since a stranger brought you, a sweet little child, to our home. My brother agreed to adopt you.

FIAMETTA. Ten years? Alas! I do not know my parents!

PERON. Which may possibly be just as well!

FIAM. I do not know why. I should like to know them.

(Enter BOCCACCIO from church. He stands in the doorway unobserved by them.)

BOCC. (Aside.) There she is! She is almost an angel! She is always with that sister!

PERON. I have been told, lately, by the person who brings the money to pay for your support and tuition, that your parents are inclined to have you marry.

BOCC. (Aside.) Indeed?

FIAM. Married? To whom?

PERON. To a very rich gentleman, holding a high government position.

FIAM. Whom I do not love, nor even know! Never!

BOCC. (Aside.) Brava!

PERON. And why not? You can learn to love him after you are married.

FIAM. Flames after smoke? Lightning after thunder?

BOCC. (Aside.) She is as witty as she is beautiful!

PERON. Who told you that matrimony is a house of smoke, thunder, and lightning?

FIAM. True love is like heaven's lightning, flashing from eye to eye, straight to the heart!

BOCC. (Aside.) Poetical too! What a treasure!

PERON. All illusions; I know; for I am older than you.

BOCC. (Aside.) Quite true!

FIAM. I am right. Listen, and I will tell you in song:

(Enter PIETRO.)

PIETRO.—Well, this is indeed a change for me! I am the first prince at Palermo, and the last student in Florence. And I come as a lover, too! I am sure that I shall not be recognized. The duke, my father, said to me the other day: "Pietro, you are no longer a boy. It is time you took a wife. Set out at once for Florence. The duke of that city has a lovely young daughter. Marry her. By this act we shall strengthen our alliance with Florence." The daughter may be a Hebe and the duke an Adonis. I do not care to become acquainted with either of them. I like the society of the young ladies, but I do not propose to marry just yet. I am too fond of wine and flirtation:

The third system of the musical score. The vocal line continues with the lyrics. The piano accompaniment includes dynamic markings of cres. (crescendo), f (forte), and p (piano).

The fourth system of the musical score. The piano accompaniment becomes more complex with rapid sixteenth-note passages in the right hand and sustained chords in the left hand. The system concludes with a final chord.

PIETRO. If I were not Prince of Palermo, I would like to be Boccaccio. [Takes book from pocket.] Here is his latest novel! It is jolly! How he abuses the poor, miserable, lazy, tippling husbands, to be sure! Ha! Ha! Ha!

[Enter LEONETTO.]

LEON. [Entering, sees PIETRO, from behind, and mistakes him for BOCC.] [Aside.] I do not think Boccaccio knows that his angel is in the church! [To PIETRO.] Ah, Boccaccio! You are here?

PIETRO. [Surprised and turns toward LEON.] Signor?

LEON. I beg your pardon! A mistake!

PIETRO. You honor me!

LEON. You resemble Boccaccio, at all events!

PIETRO. In the back of my head!

[Enter BOCC.]

LEON. The front of his head looks like that! [Points to BOCC.]

PIETRO. What? Is it possible? Ah!

BOCC. Your servant, cavalier!

PIETRO. [To LEONETTO.] How fortunate! [To BOCC.] Have I the honor of addressing the nation's greatest poet? The pride of Italy?

BOCC. I am not Petrarch.

PIETRO. No; Giovanni Boccaccio!

BOCC. Too much honor! And you are—?

PIETRO. My name? [Aside.] I must preserve my incognito. I never thought of a name. [to BOCC.] My name is Alessandro Chiarmontese. I am a Sicilian; a student.

BOCC. What did you study at Palermo?

PIETRO. Nothing. Ah, yes, yes—two branches. Wine and Flirtation!

BOCC. Pleasant studies, truly!

PIETRO. At Florence I shall study human nature.

BOCC. Then you can continue your studies in beverages. All the men of Florence are tipplers.

PIETRO. I want to be a novelist too.

LEON. Ah, indeed.

PIETRO. I am young and not without spirit and ambition; and I also have some money.

LEON. Give me more spirit and less money.

PIETRO. [Laughs—to LEON.] Not bad! [To BOCC.] Pray, sublime poet and novelist, will you accept a pupil?

BOCC. You've a wrong idea, Alessandro! My novels are not invented. They are a reflection from life. I live all my romances before writing them.

PIETRO. Just my idea! I want to live some of them too.

LEON. Then, welcome to Florence.

PIETRO. Will you give me an introduction to the good people of Florence? [To LEON.] Will you too?

LEON. Gladly.

BOCC. Come, prepare!

[Enter people from church, passing across the stage, and exit.]

LEON. [To BOCC., as some old ladies enter.] Come, Alessandro, let me introduce you those ladies.

PIETRO. No, Leonetto. I will not deprive you of their society for the world!

BOCC. [Aside.] The services are over; my fair one will soon appear!

[Enter all who have been in the church, slowly, as ISABELLA, BEATRICE, and PERONELLA enter.]

PIETRO. [To LEON.] Who is that lady?

LEON. [Thinking he means BEATRICE.] Those fair blue eyes?

PIETRO. No, no! The other.

LEON. That is Isabella, the cooper's niece.

BEA. [To PERON.] Where did you leave Fiametta?

PERON. In the church, praying to be relieved from the evil which threatens her. Her father wants to marry her, against her will. Heaven help her!

BEA. Amen.

PERON. Still, the intended husband is rich. I would marry him.

ISAB. My husband is a drunkard. Were I not married, I would not be. Marriage is slavery!

PIETRO. [To LEON.] What a pretty girl the cooper's niece is! Will you introduce me?

ISAB. [To PERON.] What a fine cavalier!

[LEONETTO presents PIETRO to ISABELLA.]

ISAB. [To PIETRO.] You come from Sicily. Our sun is not as bright as yours.

PIETRO. Then I will look into your eyes! [To LEON.] I am writing the preface.

ISAB. Besides, our climate is cold.

PIETRO. I have brought eternal fire from Ætna within my heart.

ISAB. You are a poet.

CHECCO. [To PIETRO.] A poor, blind man.

PIETRO. [To CHECCO.] Away with you!

CHECCO. [Aside.] Miser! [To BOCC.] A poor cripple!

BOCC. [Puts money in CHECCO's hat.] There.

CHECCO. Thanks signor!

[Exit all but BOCC., LEON., PIETRO, CHECCO., ISAB., BEA., & PERON.]

BOCC. [Aside.] What shall I do? [to CHECCO.] Do you want to earn some more money, my poor fellow? [Hands another coin to CHECCO, who puts crutch over his shoulder and runs after BOCC.]

Exit BOCC. and CHECCO.

BEA. [To ISABELLA and PERON., walking towards SCALZA's house.] Will you take a glass of wine, ladies?

ISAB. & PERON. Thanks. With pleasure.

PIETRO & LEON. May we escort you, ladies?

BEA. Some other time, gentlemen. To-morrow. [Exit BEA., ISAB. & PERON. into SCALZA's house.]

PIETRO. Where's Boccaccio?

LEON. [Looks into church.] He cannot be far away. I am going over to the Public house. You'll find me there. [Aside.] That young man is a second Boccaccio.

[Exit LEON.]

PIETRO. Addio. [Looks into church. Enter LOTTER and LAMB.]

LOTTER. [To LAMB.] It is Boccaccio.

LAMB. [To LOTTER.] Be quiet—we've got him now!

PIETRO. [Does not see them.] I cannot find him. He has gone to the public house.

LAMB. [Takes PIETRO by the shoulder.] I have business with you, sir. [Strikes him with umbrella.] Take that!

LOTTER. [Strikes PIETRO.] And that!

PIETRO. Oh!

LAMB. Take that! [Hits PIETRO again.] You miserable scribbler [Calls.] Scalza!

LOTTER. [Hits PIETRO.] Take that, you abusive coward! [Calls.] Scalza, come here!

PIETRO. [Aside.] Scribbler? What do they mean?

LAMB. [Pounds on SCALZA's door.] Scalza, come quickly! Here he is!

PIETRO. Have done, or I will cut you to pieces! [Draws sword; runs off. Exit PIETRO, LOTTER., and LAMBERTUCCIO.]

(Enter FIAMETTA from church. Enter BOCCACCIO, disguised as a beggar.)

FIAM. They left me alone! Where's Peronella?

Bocc. (aside.) Just in time! I'll meet her as a beggar!

A POOR, BLIND BEGGAR.

No. 7. DUETT.

Fiametta and Boccaccio.

Andante con molto appassionato. M.M. $\text{♩} = 88$.

Bocc.

The first system of the musical score features a vocal line for Boccaccio and a piano accompaniment. The vocal line begins with a rest, followed by the lyrics "A poor, blind beggar now asks you for pi - ty,". The piano accompaniment consists of a treble and bass staff with chords and moving lines. A piano dynamic marking (p) is present in the bass staff.

The second system continues the duet. The vocal line for Fiametta begins with a crescendo marking (cres.) and the lyrics "I pray you, hear me, fairest in the ci - ty; Give me a hearing, I pray you, fair la - dy, O lovely la -". The piano accompaniment continues with chords and moving lines.

The third system concludes the duet. The vocal line for Fiametta continues with the lyrics "dy, have pi - - ty, have pi - - ty! Help, O help, I do beseech thee,". The piano accompaniment includes a crescendo marking (cres.) and ends with a final chord. A piano dynamic marking (p) is also present.

ACT SECOND.

SCENE.—The houses and gardens of LOTTERINGHI and LAMBERTUCCIO: The stage is divided by a high wall, separating the two estates. In front of LOTTERINGHI's house are barrels and the tools of a cooper's shop. In front of LAMBERTUCCIO's house is an olive tree. At the rise of curtain the stage is dark, but gradually becomes more light.

Allegro illare e scherzoso.

The musical score consists of six systems, each with a grand staff (treble and bass clefs). The music is in 6/8 time and features a lively, playful character. The first system includes a forte (f) dynamic marking. The notation includes various rhythmic patterns, including eighth and sixteenth notes, and rests. The second system continues the melodic and harmonic development. The third system shows a change in the bass line with more complex rhythmic figures. The fourth system features a more active treble line with frequent sixteenth-note passages. The fifth system maintains the energetic feel with consistent rhythmic patterns. The sixth system concludes the piece with a final cadence in the bass line and a sustained chord in the treble.

Bum - ti ra - pa - ta, bum - ti ra - pa - ta, bum - ti, bum - ti, bum - ti ra - pa - ta,

The first system of the musical score consists of a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The vocal line is written on a single staff in G major (one sharp) and 2/4 time. It features a rhythmic melody with eighth and sixteenth notes. The lyrics are 'Bum - ti ra - pa - ta, bum - ti ra - pa - ta, bum - ti, bum - ti, bum - ti ra - pa - ta,'. The piano accompaniment is written on two staves (treble and bass clef). The right hand plays a melody with eighth and sixteenth notes, while the left hand plays a bass line with eighth and sixteenth notes. The piano part is marked with a 'p' (piano) dynamic.

bum - ti ra - pa - ta, bum - ti ra - pa - ta, bum - ti, bum - ti, bum - ti bum!

The second system of the musical score continues the vocal line and piano accompaniment. The vocal line has the lyrics 'bum - ti ra - pa - ta, bum - ti ra - pa - ta, bum - ti, bum - ti, bum - ti bum!'. The piano accompaniment continues with the same rhythmic pattern as the first system, maintaining the 2/4 time signature and G major key.

The first system of the musical score is in D major (two sharps). It consists of three staves. The top staff is a vocal line with lyrics. The middle staff is a vocal line with rests. The bottom staff is a piano accompaniment with a melody in the right hand and a bass line in the left hand. The piano part features a repeating eighth-note pattern in the left hand and a more complex melody in the right hand.

ALL. Would he were here!

FIAM. (To ISAB. and PERON.) Why are you so happy this morning?

ISAB. You are a mere child, and cannot understand it. Peronella is in love.

FIAM. And so am I! (Exit FIAM.)

ISAB. (Aside.) And I! He said he would come to-day. I mean to flirt with him a little, just to pay off my drunken husband!

PERON. (Aside.) He tells me in his letter that he shall be here soon. What joy! I hope he will not delay. I hate to lose a minute at my time of life.

ISAB. Why does he linger? (Enter LEON.)

LEON. Sh—!

PERON. Some one comes!

LEON. Hush!

PERON. It is he!

LEON. Are you alone?

PERON. No!—Yes!

LEON. How fortunate! (Enter PIETRO.)

PIETRO. Sh—!

ISAB. 'Tis he!

PIETRO. Is it Isabella? Are we alone?

ISAB. We are.

PIETRO. Behold your slave!

ISAB. Oh, Prince!

PIETRO. Don't call me prince. I am only the man to my friends.

ISAB. I would like a prince to woo me. It is more romantic.

PERON. (To LEON.) Whence come you?

LEON. From my study, to offer you my friendship—my love. (Aside.) What a humbug I am. (Exit LEON and PERON.)

PIETRO. (To ISAB.) I will ever be your slave. (Kneels at her feet.)

ISAB. Rise, I pray!

PIETRO. I will worship you as long as the stars shine.

ISAB. And when they cease?

PIETRO. The light of your eyes will do as well!

LOTTER. (Aside.) This gate's always locked! (To ISAB.) Open the gate!

ISAB. Heaven's! Lotteringhi's voice!

PIETRO. Your uncle?

ISAB. Get into the barrel!

PIETRO. (Gets into barrel.) I am in. (Enter LOTTER.)

ISAB. (To LOTTER.) This is a fine time to come home! And the worse for liquor too!

LOTTER. I'm not a bit drunk! I've only been talking with Lambertuccio. Lambertuccio is the one who is drunk.

ISAB. Go away! Go over to the public house, and get your journey-men, and set them to work again. Don't you ever get liquor enough?

LOTTER. Oh, yes, there was liquor enough, but there were too many fellows to drink it.

PIETRO. I call this acting a novel!

LOTTER. I've sold that barrel to the grocer.

ISAB. Which barrel?

LOTTER. That barrel. (pointing to that in which is PIETRO.)

PIETRO. This barrel!

LOTTER. He has made me a small deposit (aside) which I spent for wine!

PIETRO. I'm sold! I go with the barrel.

ISAB. How much is the grocer to give you?

LOTTER. Three pieces of gold.

ISAB. Why didn't you give it away? Why I sold it for six pieces.

LOTTER. You! To whom.

ISAB. Tell the grocer he can't have it. You are an idiot! Go, get your men.

PIETRO. (Aside.) Quite a stirring chapter in my novel!

LOTTER. No, Isabella; I must keep my word. The barrel is sold to the grocer.

ISAB. Why need you? I tell you I have sold it for double what the grocer is to pay you.

LOTTER. Is it really true? To whom?

ISAB. A fine young man.

LOTTER. For cash?

ISAB. Yes. (PIETRO hands ISAB. money, unseen.)

LOTTER. And the grocer wanted credit! (Aside.) Except the small deposit.

ISAB. Here is the money.

LOTTER. Wait a moment. (rolls barrel.)

PIETRO. Oh, my back!

LOTTER. What was that? Who is this man? (PIETRO comes out of barrel.)

PIETRO. Who is the man, sir? I am the man, sir! 'Tis I!

LOTTER. (To ISAB.) Who—is—this—man?

ISAB. Intoxicated badly this time, are you not? It is the young man who bought the barrel. He got in to examine it; to see if it is perfect, as he wishes to take it immediately to Afghanistan with him.

PIETRO. (Aside.) Delightful! The uncle is a dupe. Another chapter in my novel! (To LOTTER.) Yes; that is true!

LOTTER. I beg your pardon, sir.

PIETRO. You are forgiven.

LOTTER. Does the barrel suit you?

PIETRO. Well—well—I—

ISAB. I heard you say the seams wanted pitching, sir.

PIETRO. Quite right.

LOTTER. I'll fix it.

ISAB. Go and pitch it!

PIETRO. (Aside.) Pitch it into the street!

LOTTER. Is there any fire, Isabella?

ISAB. No.

LOTTER. Get some wine for the gentleman. The best. I'll light the fire. (To PIETRO.) Honor us by remaining, signor.

PIETRO. Yes!

LOTTER. Come, Isabella.

ISAB. What about the grocer?

LOTTER. I don't care for that silly grocer! He's an old cheat! He sells plaster-of-Paris fig paste, and he sands his sugar!

ISAB. (To PIETRO.) Remain here, sir. (Exit LOTTER and ISAB.)

PIETRO. I am living a delightful romance, truly! Everything seems to be real enough, certainly. Her uncle nearly broke every bone in my body, rolling me about in that barrel.

ACT THIRD.

SCENE. I. Garden of the Ducal Palace at Florence. Fête given by PRINCE PIETRO in honor of FIAMETTA, his affianced.

INTRODUCTION. (Chorus discovered at rise of curtain.)

Tempo di menuetto. M.M. = ♩ 84.

The musical score is written for piano and consists of four systems of music. The key signature is one sharp (F#), and the time signature is 3/4. The first system starts with a piano (p) dynamic. The second system includes a fortissimo piano (sfz p) dynamic. The third system continues the melodic and harmonic development. The fourth system begins with a forte (f) dynamic. The notation includes various musical symbols such as notes, rests, beams, and dynamic markings.

The first system of the piano accompaniment consists of two staves. The upper staff is in treble clef with a key signature of one sharp (F#) and a common time signature. It features a melody with eighth and sixteenth notes, including a trill in the third measure. The lower staff is in bass clef and provides a harmonic accompaniment with chords and moving lines. Dynamics include a forte (f) marking in the first measure of the lower staff.

HOW PLEASING HIS NOVELS!

No. 16 a.

CHORUS.

This section contains the vocal melody and piano accompaniment for the chorus. It is divided into two systems. The first system has four vocal staves (Soprano, Alto, Tenor, and Bass) and a piano accompaniment staff. The vocal parts sing the lyrics: "How pleas - ing the novels of jol - ly Boc - ca - cio ! Re - fresh - ing are they !". The piano accompaniment for the first system is in treble clef with a key signature of one sharp. The second system continues the piano accompaniment with two staves (treble and bass clef), featuring a forte (f) dynamic marking.

(Exit CHORUS.)

(Enter PIETRO R. Enter BOCC. L.)

PIETRO. Ah, my dear, Boccaccio, I am glad to see you at Court. I wish to present you to the Duke, and to my future bride. This is our betrothal festival.

BOCC. (Aside) Fiametta! (To PIETRO.) Prince, you honor me! [Enter MAJOR DOMO.]

PIETRO. (To MAJOR DOMO.) How is the Princess, this morning?

MAJOR. H'm. Ha! Quite well. She is constantly at the bedside of his highness. You can imagine.

BOCC. (Aside.) That is why I do not see her.

MAJOR. H'm. Ha! It is the wish of the Duke that the festivities shall not be interrupted by his slight illness. Here is the programme for the day. You can imagine.

PIETRO. Let us see. (Enter LEON.)

BOCC. At last!

LEON. Dear Prince!

PIETRO. Welcome, dear Leonetto.

LEON. (To BOCC.) What news?

BOCC. (To LEON.) Fiametta is the daughter of the Duke. She is to become Pietro's bride. I cannot think of such a thing!

PIETRO. (To BOCC.) Cavalier Boccaccio, if you please, you may arrange a comedy to be played previous to the supper.

MAJOR. H'm. Ha! An extempore comedy. Understand? You can imagine!

PIETRO. (To BOCC.) There is no one so familiar with the manners and customs of Florence as yourself!

BOCC. I? (Exit MAJOR.)

LEON. (Aside to BOCC.) Accept the management. It will aid your plans. Fiametta will, of course, take part!

BOCC. [Aside to LEON.] You are right. [To PIETRO.] With pleasure!

PIETRO. Thanks, Giovanni. The entire management is in your hands. I must marry a lady I do not love at all, just to please my father!

BOCC. The maiden is said to be a paragon of grace and beauty.

PIETRO. Well, she is not so bad, after all!

BOCC. [Aside.] Indeed? The idiot! [To PIETRO.] But does the girl consent to marry you?

PIETRO. Yes: although she declared yesterday that she did not care for me. She was jesting, of course; for it would be simply impossible for any girl not to like me!

BOCC. [Aside.] What an insufferably conceited fellow! [To PIETRO.] Did you ever love?

PIETRO. Yes. When I was sixteen years of age, I fell in love with a servant of my mother, and promised to marry her.

LEON. And you did not do it?

PIETRO. I did. I kept my word. I married her to another! To my coachman!

BOCC. And Isabella?

PIETRO. Only a harmless little flirtation, just to kill time.

ALWAYS IN TWOS OR IN THREES!

No. 16 b.

Boccaccio, Pietro & Leonetto.

The musical score is written for voice and piano. It consists of four systems of staves. The first system shows the vocal line and piano accompaniment. The lyrics are: "Always in twos or in threes or in fours or in fives, yes, but nev - er a -". The second system continues the vocal line with the lyrics: "- lone! Always in twos or in threes or in fours or in fives, yes, but nev - er a - lone!". The piano accompaniment features a steady rhythm with chords and moving lines in both hands. The third and fourth systems continue the piano accompaniment, with the vocal line ending in the second system.

[Exit BOCC., LEON., and PIETRO into Palace. Enter PERON, LAMB., and MAJOR.]

MAJOR. (To LAMB. and PERON.) H'm. Ha! Don't be afraid. The Duke wants to thank you for the great care you have given to the education of his daughter. You can imagine!

LAMB. This is too much honor. I never dreamed my foster-daughter was a princess, when she was knitting my stockings and—

PERON. And to think I have often boxed the ears of a real Princess!

LAMB. Shall I really shake hands with the duke himself?

MAJOR. H'm. Ha! Certainly. Why you have already met him. He is the unknown man who has brought you the money for Fiametta's expenses. You can imagine!

LAMB. Why, the last time he came, I called him a fool and an old thief! But I was half drunk that day. Please, tell the Duke that I am never completely sober. I can bring a hundred witnesses to prove it! (To PERON.) Well, sister, you go first and speak to him. You know you can talk. (Aside.) Well, here is good fortune, indeed. If I had not met a cross-eyed man on my way here I should not fear the future. (Exit PERON and MAJOR.) Let me see, I am the foster father of the Princess Fiametta, consequently, the Duke is my somewhat hammered-out foster brother-in-law.

I'M THE FATHER OF A PRINCESS!

[Enter FIAM. and BOCC.]

BOCC. So, my poor Fiametta is to be sacrificed. Alas! Ah! here she comes! (To FIAM.) Princess Fiametta!

FIAM. Do you really love me as much as you profess?

BOCC. With my life! But when I became so fondly attached to you, I thought you were an humble citizen's daughter, not beyond the adoration of a poor poet.

FIAM. Forgive me for being a Princess!

BOCC. It is, indeed wrong of you; but there is no guilt in it!

FIAM. I am sure I can yet obtain the consent of my father to marry you, if Pietro will relinquish my hand.

BOCC. Courage, courage, Fiametta! I will undertake the task of making him yield his claim upon you. Do you remember the day our eyes first met?

FIAM. I do, indeed. We were promenading, listening to a Tuscan song.

BOCC. Let us sing that song now

[Enter PERON and LAMB.]

LAMB. The Duke has decorated me! Oh, what honor!

PERON. And the Duke called me his old girl. (Enter SCALZA.)

SCALZA. (To LAMB.) I want you to assist us in getting Boccaccio banished. (Enter ISABELLA, BEATRICE, and LOTTER.)

LAMB. Sorry, but I can't! The court now protects him, and I am loyal to the Court.

SCALZA. Ah! I see. Well, coopers are getting aristocratic. Why doesn't the Duke honor me! (Enter BOCC.)

LAMB. (Aside.) That simpleton!

BEATRICE. (Aside.) The student!

ISAB. (Aside.) 'Tis Boccaccio!

SCALZA. It is Boccaccio!

LOTTER. What? Boccaccio?

PERON. Yes; it is Boccaccio!

BOCC. Yes; I'm Boccaccio! I am pleased to meet you all!

BEA. You'll find us friends, cavalier.

SCALZA. (Aside.) Nothing of the kind!

ISAB. (Aside.) A fine cavalier!

LAMB. (To SCALZA and LOTTER.) Beware! Treat him respectfully.

LOTTER (To LAMB.) He is a coward! He has attacked us!

LAMB (Aside to LOTTER.) He has insulted us.

LOTTER and LAMB. He has insulted us. Let us force him to retract.

BOCC. (To LOTTER and LAMB.) What is the matter, gentlemen?

LOTTER and LAMB. We belong to the opposition.

BOCC. Oh! Indeed!

BEA. (Sarcastically.) Oh, they are all good, sober, industrious men and therefore took offence at your novels!

BOCC. Ah, I see! But novels aside. Sink the shop. I am arranging a play for performance at the festival, and I want actors.

SCALZA. Actors?

LOTTER. Marionettes?

BOCC. Not dummies! You will not do!

SCALZA. (To LOTTER.) Is he making fun of us?

LOTTER. (To SCALZA.) Oh, no! He means it for politeness!

LAMB. (To LOTTER.) Not a word! Boccaccio is able to get you appointed Court cooper of Sicily.

LOTTER. Is it possible?

LAMB. (To SCALZA.) A word from Boccaccio will make you Court barber!

SCALZA. Indeed?

BOCC. (To LOTTER., LAMB., and SCALZA.) Will you take part in the dramatic representation?

LOTTER. We are all ready!

BOCC. Alas! dear friends, you have hated Boccaccio. You must not despise the man for the idea he represents.

The first system of the musical score consists of four vocal staves and a piano accompaniment. The vocal staves are arranged in two pairs. The first pair of vocal staves has the lyrics "hit! Yet the man who can laugh,..... Doth wis - dom show,..... So let's laugh". The second pair of vocal staves has the lyrics "hit! Yet the man who can laugh,..... Doth wis - dom show,..... So pray laugh". The third pair of vocal staves has the lyrics "told by Boc-cac-ci - o! Altho' it placed us ill at ease, His Truth did all the women please! So now we'll". The piano accompaniment is written for the lower staves, featuring a grand staff with treble and bass clefs. The music is in a key with three sharps (F#, C#, G#) and a 2/4 time signature. The tempo is marked with a quarter note. The dynamics include f (forte) and ff (fortissimo).

The musical score is written for a voice and piano ensemble. It consists of two systems of staves. The first system has four vocal staves and a piano accompaniment. The second system has four vocal staves and a piano accompaniment. The lyrics are in English and Italian, with some words in parentheses. The music is in a major key with a 2/4 time signature. The dynamic marking 'f' (forte) is used throughout. The lyrics are: 'Let us gai - ly laugh at the men!..... He hit them', 'Let us gai - ly laugh at the men!..... He hit them', 'by my Truth were hit! Let us laugh at the men!..... I hit them', 'truth, you know, as told by Boccac - ci - o! Al - tho' it placed us ill at ease, His Truth did', 'so! BOCC. (Aside.) Ah, you will never understand me. I do not care. You will serve my purpose, to-day. Here comes Pietro. (Enter PIETRO.)

PIETRO. My dear Boccaccio, we are all prepared for your comedy.

BOCC. It is all ready. This contains full directions.

PIETRO. (To BOCC.) Is your play funny?

BOCC. I think you will find it so!

PIETRO. Ah, there comes a charming lady!

BOCC. Fiametta?

PIETRO. No; Isabella. (Enter ISABELLA, PIETRO kisses her hand.)
[Enter BEATRICE and PERON.]

BEA. Why, the Prince kisses Isabella's hand!

PERON. Court custom!

PIETRO. (To LADIES.) You are all quite welcome to the entertainment. I take pleasure in surrounding myself with the most lovely ladies!

PERON. Oh, we are charmed! (Enter LEON and STUDENTS.)

TOFANO. Ah, Boccaccio?

STUDENTS. (To BOCC.) So you are here, Boccaccio? (To PIETRO.) Your Highness!

PIETRO. Welcome all!

LEON. (To BOCC.) I have great news for you.

BOCC. For me?

LEON. You have been appointed a Professor of the University of Florence for your interpretation of the "Divine Comedy" of Dante. We came to bring you the news.

BOCC. What honor! (Enter all the principals.)

PIETRO. You deserve it! Boccaccio, I congratulate you! You sing the praise of Love in your poems most nobly. (Enter CHORUS.) (To guests.) Welcome all!

BOCC. Ladies and gentlemen, I trust you will enjoy the little comedy I have prepared. There is, I hope, a moral to the play.

PIETRO. May I see the text ere you begin?

BOCC. At your command, noble Prince!

PIETRO. (Aside.) What is this? (Reads.) "Narcissino, or the Flirtations of a Stranger with Columbine, a lovely Florentine." What does this mean? My own adventures? My wooing of Isabella? (Aloud to BOCC.) What does this mean, Boccaccio?

BOCC. (To PIETRO.) Your Highness, I thought that if I could but let you look within my mirror and see your follies reflected there, you would relinquish the hand of Fiametta, whom you admit you do not love, to me. I have long loved her, and she loves me. (Aloud.) Shall the play go on?

PIETRO. No. You have dared to show that even a prince is but human, and has his faults; but which he is full determined hereafter to amend. Take Fiametta, and be happy! I deserve your rebuke!

BOCC. But the Duke?

FIAM. I will obtain his consent!

PIETRO. And I will obey my father only when he is in the right.

BOCC. This shall be my last practical joke!

VALUABLE MUSIC BOOKS

FOR

MUSICAL SOCIETIES, CHURCH CHOIRS, &c.

IN 8 LISTS. LIST 1.

ORATORIOS.

The Choruses of these Oratorios are published in separate volumes. See List 2.

Joshua.

Composed A. D. 1747, by
Handel.

Boards $1.00, paper 80 cts.

This majestic composition, full of fine effects, is, to the American public, less known than most others. But its stately choruses at Gilgal, at Jericho, by the Vale of Ajalon; such duets as "Our Limpid Streams, such songs as "O had I Jubal's Lyre," and those belonging to the parts of the Angel, of Joshua, of Caleb, and of Othniel, are quite sufficient to make it one of the most interesting of Handel's great works.

Samson.

Composed A. D. 1742, by
Handel.

Boards $1.00, paper 80 cts.

Nothing can be more powerful than the greater choruses:—nothing more elevating or inspiring than "When around about the starry throne," nothing more mournfully beautiful than the blind Samson's "No Sun!—No Moon!" Well established societies cannot afford to ignore this magnificent work, and young organizations should not think of stopping short of the ability to sing it.

Israel in Egypt.

Composed A. D. 1738, by
Handel.

Boards $1.00, paper 80 cts.

"He gave them HAILSTONES for rain!" Now for the great DOUBLE CHORUS. "Sing ye to the Lord, for He hath triumphed gloriously!" Here is full scope for the full power of a course of voices.

Judas Maccabæus.

Composed A. D. 1746, by
Handel.

Boards $1.00, paper 80 cts.

Most of it is constituted of Heroic music, strong, manly, courage-sustaining and brilliant. There are, also, in contrast, the mourning songs of the afflicted Israelites, and the silver-sweet "Sound an alarm," and still different, the prayer-choruses before battle.

The Messiah.

Composed A. D. 1741, by
Handel.

Boards $1.00, paper 80 cts.

Since the day when an English audience first arose, and remained standing during the performance of the great Hallelujah Chorus, THE MESSIAH has kept its place in popular estimation, in the front rank, perhaps at the head of Oratorios. No society of standing can afford to omit it from its repertoire.

Passion Music.

After St. Matthew, by
J. S. Bach.

Cloth $1.75; boards $1.80;
paper $1.25.

The sacred drama of passion week, taking shape about the year A. D. 1250, became gradually clothed with music. Of all compositions of the kind, this is doubtless the most beautiful. (To some music lovers, it is the best of all sacred compositions.) It is very difficult, and as a whole, beyond the reach of any but the best performers. But the easy parts, including the chorals, are quite attainable, and the work may be attacked in sections with the best results.

The Creation.

Composed A. D. 1797-'98,
by Haydn.

Boards $1.00, paper 80 cts.

When Father Haydn chants, "The Heavens are telling the glory of God," all men must listen and applaud. Of this cheerful descriptive and perfectly melodious oratorio, we cannot be weary. As it is comparatively easy, it is often the first choice of new societies.

Athalie.

Composed by Mendelssohn
(Posthumous Work.)

Boards $1.00, paper 80 cts.

Although published after the death of the author, it is a complete composition, and Mendelssohn, if living, might have enlarged, but probably would not have otherwise changed it. Founded on Racine's Athalie.

Elijah.

Composed A. D. 1846, by
Mendelssohn.

Boards $1.00, paper 80 cts.

A work filled with such a "sacred" spirit, that, in its effect on the heart and the feelings, it may be said to excel the most solemn church service. Not of great difficulty.

St. Paul.

Composed by Mendelssohn.

Boards $1.00, paper 80 cts.

Many parts of this Oratorio have such a fame, that no collection of choruses is complete without them. But they are best in their true places, where scenes connected with the martyrdom of Stephen, the conversion at Damascus the sending forth of Paul as an apostle, the attempted sacrifice at Lystra, are vividly brought to mind by words and music.

David.

Composed by Neukomm.

Price, $1.00.

"David" used to be the "stock piece" for musical societies; and although a multitude of worthy productions have in a measure displaced it, this musical drama, illustrating the acts of David, Jonathan and Goli: will always be a favorite.

Eli.

Composed A. D. 1855, by
Costa.

Boards $1.75, paper $1.00.

This is one of the easier Oratorios, and follows the story of the aged high priest, in his relation to the young Samuel, to sinful Israel, and to the taking of the Ark by the Philistines.

Naaman.

Composed A. D. 1864, by
Costa.

Boards $1.75, paper $1.00.

"Naaman" is, like the preceding, an easy Oratorio, and might as well be called "Elisha," as the text has reference to the works and miracles of that prophet. The changing scenes: at Damascus, at Samaria, at the Jordan: the affecting incident of the raising of the Shunamite's son; the war-songs of Syrians; and the lyrical picture of the healing of the warrior-leper, constitute a great and pleasing variety, and add to the effect of the music.

St. Peter.

Composed A. D. 1873, by
J. K. Patne.

Boards $1.75, paper $1.00.

This, the only full-grown American Oratorio extant, has fairly won a place among standard works, and has been, in its public performances, a decided success. Words mostly from the Bible. The period is that of the last appearances of the risen Christ, and of the descent of fiery tongues on the day of Pentecost.

Moses in Egypt.

Composed A. D. 1818, by
Rossini.

Price, $2.00.

A brilliant composition, whether we call it a "Sacred Opera," or Oratorio, is very taking throughout, and its prominent airs have world-wide popularity.

NOEL: A Christmas Oratorio, or Cantata, by C. St. SAENS, may be added to the list. $1.25 in Cloth, $1.00 in Boards.
